

Wurm in Raumstation

Ein Virus auf den Laptops der Raumstation – diskutiert wurde das auf SpaceRef.com. [Via Heise.de (engl.)] Slashdot zum Thema: „BBC News is reporting that laptops taken to the International Space Station by NASA astronauts are infected with the Gammima.AG worm. The laptops have no net connection; officials suspect the worm may have been transferred via a USB flash drive owned by an astronaut. NASA have said this isn't the first time computer viruses had travelled into space.“ Ich schließe mich einem Kommentar dort an: „Honestly though, Why the hell dont the laptops have Linux? ... There is no reason for a email/nutritional PC to not run linux.“