

Why men love breasts

Sciencedump: „This new theory finally explains why men love breasts – Scientists have never found a satisfactory explanation for this phenomenon, but now, the neuroscientist Larry Young has found an explanation that he thinks ‘just makes a lot of sense.’

Well, when a woman’s nipples are stimulated during breast-feeding, a neurochemical oxytocin – know as the ‘love drug’ – floods her brain. This is helping her to focus her attention and affection on her baby. But recent research has shown that nipple stimulation also enhances sexual arousal to a great majority of women. Furthermore, it also activates the same brain areas as vaginal and clitoral stimulation.

Gut zu wissen.